"Scientific resources management of countries and regions" is a scientific edition, focused upon the academic perspectives of science. While striving for a balance of theory and application, edition is ultimately dedicated to developing theoretical constructs. Its strategies are to invite and encourage offerings from various disciplines; to serve as a forum through which these may interact, and thus to expand frontiers of knowledge in and contribute to the science. In this role, editions both structures and is structured by the research efforts of a multidisciplinary community of scholars.
